Looking at your full archive, we can try to map your diplomas, certifications, and professional training into "degree-equivalent levels". This doesn't replace an official degree but is useful for showing educational equivalency, skill level, or portfolio credentials. Here's a breakdown:

Degree-Level Equivalent Mapping

Equivalent to a Bachelor's Degree (Undergraduate)

- Duquesne University — Bachelor of Arts, Journalism and Media Arts (actual BA)
- Alison Advanced Diplomas
- Advanced Diploma in Sustainable Architecture
- Advanced Diploma in Principles of Engineering Systems
- Diplomas in Specialized Fields (Alison / other sources):
- Children's Studies
- Early Western Political Thought

- Educational Psychology
- English and Language Literature
- Human Behavior
- Legal Studies
- Land Surveying Architecture
- Pelle Active Care Nursing
- Teaching Skills for Educators
- FL Studio / Music Production Diplomas (Alison, Coursera) — demonstrates professional-level training in music, which could be considered a vocational degree equivalent.

Equivalent to a Master's Degree (Graduate Level)

- Duquesne University — Master of Science, Leadership (actual MS)
- Wesleyan University Capstones & Advanced Creative Writing Courses — Capstone and focused study in literature, writing, and storytelling; at a professional/graduate skill level.
- University of Minnesota — Diploma of 24 Credits + Integrative Nursing — advanced coursework beyond undergraduate level.

Professional Certifications / Vocational Training (Post-Secondary / Associate Level Equivalent)

- American Heart Association — BLS and CPR
- American Welding Society — Welding Fundamentals & Fabrication Certificates
- Alison Certificates in Architecture, Nursing, Supply Chain, Physics, and Engineering Principles

- Coursera Professional Courses (Johns Hopkins, Berkeley, UC Santa Cruz, etc.) — specialized skill certifications.
- HealthStream Extensive Clinical & Safety Training — professional healthcare credentials.
- PA DHS Caregiving Training 2.0
- University of Central Florida — JavaScript Full Stack Developer Certificate
- University of Iowa — Computer Science Certificates (7)

High School / Pre-University Level

- Some of the early certificates in fundamentals (Art Instruction Schools, Fundamentals of English Grammar, Introduction courses) might map roughly to high school completion or early college-level preparatory skills.

Summary

- You have formal undergraduate and graduate degrees: BA + MS.
- Your Alison diplomas and Coursera/University of Minnesota advanced coursework could collectively be viewed as undergraduate to graduate-level equivalents in multiple disciplines: architecture, engineering, nursing, creative writing, and music.
- Your professional certifications (AHA, AWS, HealthStream, IT, etc.) add vocational/associate-level equivalency, showing practical skills and applied expertise.

✅ In practical terms:

- You already hold a BA and MS, which are formal degrees.
- If you wanted to "sum up" all your diplomas and certifications as degree-equivalents, it could be described as:
- Master's-level education across multiple disciplines with extensive undergraduate and vocational certifications in healthcare, architecture, engineering, creative arts, IT, and professional skills.
- Perfect! I'll create a clear table mapping all your diplomas, certificates, and awards to degree-equivalent levels. This will let anyone quickly see your education, professional skills, and credentials at a glance. Here's the draft:
